

Goldwater Rests With Family Here

Senator Barry Goldwater, in California to campaign for his bid for the Republican Presidential nomination in California's June primary, spent Sunday in seclusion in Torrance. Goldwater took time from his campaign to spend the day with his daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Ross, in Torrance. The senator returned to Washington, D. C., late Sunday evening to attend to duties in the Senate.

Regional Park Plan Rejected

Proposals to establish a 20,000-acre regional park in the Santa Monica Mountains under special assessment districts were abandoned Tuesday afternoon when the Board of Supervisors rejected the special district idea.

The supervisors did, however, ask the state to earmark the land for a regional park in the $150 million state park bond issue to be placed on the November ballot.

CONTROVERSY over the proposed park had raged for more than two years, with proponents arguing the park is needed. They proposed the creation of a special district with the power to levy a property tax of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation to support the park.

The district would have included coastal cities from Santa Monica to the southern limit of Torrance. Of the 14 cities included, 12 cities had adopted resolutions opposing the creation of the new taxing agency.

MAYOR William F. Czeleger of Redondo Beach and Beverly Hills councilman Leonard Horwin led the opponents of the park in their fight before the Board of Supervisors. It was Horwin who proposed the state financing for the park.

State Senator Thomas Rees plans to ask the state to include the 20,000 acres in the state bond issue, according to Horwin. Horwin said he had talked with Rees only moments before the hearing on the matter.

King Now Attending Conference

Congressman Cecil R. King is currently in Geneva Switzerland, as part of a United States delegation to the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development.

Congressman King is one of four Congressional Advisors designated by House Speaker John McCormack to attend the conference.

The conference, which began Monday, is the largest trade conference ever called and the first general United Nations conclave on trade since the Havana Conference on Trade and Employment in 1947-48.

Representatives of some 122 countries are scheduled to participate. The senior Democratic member of the Committee on Ways and Means, Congressman King has also been recently appointed by President Johnson as a delegate to the "Kennedy-round" of trade negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade scheduled in Geneva later this year.

Roof Fire Wasn't Hot, After All

Steam rising from the roof of a home in west Torrance caused a fire scare Monday. Two fire engines and a salvage unit responded to the call.

Sun shining on the roof after a shower caused the steam to rise at the home, 5509 Glenn Place, about 1 p.m., firemen found.

In other fire calls, station three at Artesia and Yukon Avenue responded to a call at 18320 Burin when a small fire broke out under the house and under a floor furnace. No damage was reported.

Smoke coming from the heater system at a restaurant at Artesia and Crenshaw Boulevard brought Station 3 to the scene. No fire was found or damage caused, fire officials said.

Council Campaign Trail

Sciarrotta Asks Candidates To Be Specific on Charges

Candidates for city council seats who have been charging "corruption" in the present city council were challenged to cite specifics by Councilman Ross Sciarrotta Tuesday evening.

In a prepared statement read at the conclusion of the Tuesday session of the council, Sciarrotta charged several candidates with making "irresponsible statements which reflect upon every member of this council." He also charged the candidates with "using these devious means to fool the public."

Sciarrotta cited steps taken prior to the report of the attorney general's office on the investigation into the Torrance Police Department, "for the record, for the people of Torrance, and for the benefit of these confused candidates."

THE COUNCILMAN said the council has instructed the city manager to explore the possibility of getting an agency to study the police department and make recommendations during the last budget session. He said the Sheriff's office had volunteered but was reluctant to "step in while the investigation was on. They are now coming in to help us in the organization of this department," he added.

Sciarrotta also said the council had invited the attorney general's office to conduct the investigation, opened examinations for the police chief's position, and acted on the reports as they were presented. "We had a job," he said, "and we did it."

Speaking of criticism of the council for not making the attorney general's reports public, Sciarrotta said the men who voted against making them public did so "on the advice of the city attorney and not because they were fearful of the contents or fearful of being implicated." He added he hoped the day would come "when this body will be free to make the reports available."

SCIARROTTA challenged candidates to "run on their own merits and specific issues." He added, "The Torrance Herald is to be complimented on its editorial concerning this subject."

In closing, Sciarrotta said his statement was not to be "construed that I am endorsing all the incumbents or any other candidate."

Councilman Ken Miller offered his congratulations to the incumbents. "Not once have they answered back to the abuse (of this campaign)," said Miller.

Following Sciarrotta's statement, a man later identified as Robert White told the council, "If your consciences were clear, you wouldn't need to make such statements."

Former councilman Robert Jahn again asked that the reports be made public before the council adjourned.

C. J. Peterson

Attorney Clifford Peterson, seeking election to the City Council this month, this week issued a five-point program of action he pledges to support if elected.

Peterson said he would:
(1) Protect all personal and property rights of Torrance citizens;
(2) Promote proper and good relations between labor and management of the city and of city officials;

(3) Eliminate self-interest and do what is best for all;

(4) Support and promote all programs designed to benefit youth;

(5) Cooperate with all agencies to prevent organized crime of any size and kind in the city of Torrance.

Peterson is a member of the city's Civil Service Commission, the Torrance Chamber of Commerce, and is a director of the Youth Baseball Council.

John Mulvihill

John Mulvihill, seeking election to the City Council, labeled the incumbent City Council with a "do nothing" tag, saying "it shunned its responsibility to Torrance citizens even in the face of a whole series of events which pointed to 'obvious corruption'."

In a statement issued to newspapers this week, Mulvihill said the city would be lost in a morass of political intrigue and corruption "if outside agencies had not stepped in to do the investigating job that the City Council should have done in the first place.

He charges the city with whitewashing the whole issue of irregularities, and of suppressing the reports of the attorney general's office.

"Political intrigue is continuing and can be expected to continue, even in the selections of a new police chief," he said. He criticized the selection of Ed Ferraro as city manager, saying he "had been hand-picked by the former city manager who quit under fire."

Mulvihill wants a full financial disclosure law for councilmen, a citizens advisory police commission, and councilmanic districts.
